Cold? What cold?

The hardy Elk Point Peewee Avalanche are used to the cold, and spend every possible moment of the winter on ice. The plunging thermometer did not even slightly deter them from their ride on the Elk Point Minor Hockey float in Friday night's Winter Wonderland parade. The Avs spent the rest of the weekend in the cold climate of the A. G. Ross Arena as they hosted their annual tournament. More Extravaganza pictures on Pages 6 and 7.

Deepfreeze doesn't derail Extravaganza

Elk Point and district ignored the coldest temperatures of the year to enjoy all the fun of Elk Point Chamber of Commerce Christmas Extravaganza on Friday night.

One or two floats may have been a no-show at the Winter Wonderland Parade, but the colorful, lighted procession was cheered on by a large crowd of well-wrapped watchers, even though their applause may have been muffled by thick mittens.

Two local financial institutions provided venues for warmer pursuits. At Servus Credit Union, manager Rod Randall directed traffic and Chamber president Sandy Smith and Extravaganza fundraiser Sharon Smith helped with setup as a long line of participants were recorded on their own music videos through the magical technology of DanceHeads.

Down the street at ATB Financial, another long lineup was encouraged to work on their colouring contest pictures while they waited to see the ever-jolly Santa Claus and have their photos snapped by Peggy Smereka. ATB staff welcomed the crowd with coffee and hot chocolate. Elk Point Volunteer Firefighters stoked two blazing bonfires on Main Street, where many stopped to warm up while they waited to take a ride on three horse-drawn wagons. Elk Point 4-H Multi Club assisted with loading, unloading and escorting the riders.

F. G. Miller's Class of 2007 had the assistance of MLA Ray Danyluk and school trustee Darrell Youngmans in their 50-50 sales, and also served up hot dogs at Cal's Hardware, while Minor Hockey had another hot dog booth across the street at the Empress Restaurant.

The Extravaganza stage was abandoned due to heating problems, with entertainment moved indoors to the Nexus Strategies building, where MC Suzan Bartholomew and the Country Playboys entertained with good country music until time for the prize draws (see Page 3).

Brilliant fireworks soared high into the night sky to end the evening, drawing honks from those watching from their cars as well as cheers from those who braved the cold to watch from the sidewalks.

Rural MLA captures leadership on second ballot

By RACHEL DE WAAL
Review Contributor

An army of volunteers helped propel Ed Stelmach into the premier's office, according to local MLA Ray Danyluk.

"That was very critical to Ed's success," said Danyluk, who was very happy with Stelmach's first-place finish. "I want to thank all the volunteers for the tremendous job and energy and input and passion they put into this election."

Stelmach, who will be sworn into office on Dec. 15, also thanked volunteers at his first official news conference in Edmonton on Monday.

"To those individuals who stuck with me . . . they were there through thick and thin. That's what got me up a lot earlier every morning," said Stelmach.

In one week, Stelmach managed to more than double his support in the province from 15.3 per cent on Nov. 25 to 35.9 per cent with the first count of the second ballot on Dec. 2. After the third-placed Ted Morton was eliminated from the race and his ballots were transferred, Stelmach sealed his victory as provincial support jumped to 58 per cent. Jim Dinning only captured 42 per cent of the ballots.

Stelmach was again the favourite in Lac La Biche-St. Paul as the first choice for 82.6 per cent of 3,022 voters. He then gained another 179 votes as the second choice of Morton backers. Only 1,730 votes had been cast in Lac La Biche-St. Paul for the first ballot on Nov. 25.

Local association president Ron Rudkowsky said Stelmach's sincerity was the main factor in the increase of voters.

Long service awards for health care staff

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point Healthcare Centre and Elk Point Community Care Services recognized a total of 260 years of service by their staff at the annual awards presentation last Thursday.

Marguerite Friesen, Agnes Moroziuk, Rosemary Rohner, Paulette Levasseur, Bev Chomlak and Joan Panteluk handed out awards which "recognize and acknowledge the milestones in these people's careers," said MC Kathy Gusnowski, praising the recipients' caring attitudes, dedication and willingness to work as a team.

Over the years, Gusnowski said, "we grow to regard our co-workers as friends and family. As the saying goes, you've come a long way, baby."

Five year awards went to Kenna Hillebrand, who now is a laboratory assistant after working in long term care and admitting, to Tammy Smith, who is a "very reliable and dependable" laundry worker, and to Shannon Capjack, who works at Fishing Lake as the settlement nurse, promoting and providing health care and public health. Also qualifying for the awards but unavailable to attend were acute care head nurse Pamela Ballas, the always energetic long term care nursing assistant Dawn Condon and homecare RN Sheila Viel, who came to Elk Point Health Centre for a rural nursing program practicum and came back to work here at the completion of her course.

Ten-year recognition went to laundry worker Iris Brown, who has also worked in housekeeping, the kitchen and materials management during that time, and to physiotherapy assistant Richard Peters who worked at St. Therese Health Centre becoming here six years ago to work three days a week with the extended care residents. Housekeeping worker Blandine Adkins and long term care RN Flora Lambright also qualified for 1-year awards, but were not present.

Joanne Ference was the lone recipient of a 15-year award. She first came to the health centre as a student nurse and continued to work here after graduation as an acute care RN, later transferring to long term care. Since September of this year, she has been working with home care.

Bussiere and Colleen Schade were unable to be on hand to receive their 20-year awards.

Mary Garnett-Bennett, a dedicated and hard working acute care RN who graduated from nursing school in 1965, and public health RN Mona McGinnis, known for thinking outside the box and for her work with the Healthy U Committee, accepted their 25-year awards. Acute care RN

Debbie Hansen, a 1976 grad of the University of Alberta, has become an integral part of the team.

Two very special ladies received 30-year awards.

Deanna Fakeley, an LPN with home care, "is committed to her profession," said presenter Joan Panteluk. "She's very professional, definitely dedicated, emotionally supportive and can be depended on." Fakeley also teaches CPR and first aid courses as well as the baby-sitting and Home Alone courses, and is "always available when she is needed."

Recreation assistant Carolyn Onusko came to Elk Point Hospital 30 years ago as an LPN, and presenter Bev Chomlak said, "has found her niche in long term care. She's compassionate, caring, fun-loving and spontaneous, as well as an advocate for the residents."

Every moment counts, especially during this time of year, and we don't want you to miss any of them.

This is my home.

Which is why we support Alberta's communities.

Alberta's oil and gas industry directly and indirectly supports 275,000 jobs across the province. We also buy products and services from local businesses—which, in turn, employ local people.

Take Innisfail's Metal Form Industries. Its 14 workers—a peak reached only once before in its 25-year history—are all from Innisfail and area. They've helped Metal Form Industries create a thriving operation turning sheet metal into vehicle cabs. Oil and gas firms account for more than 65 per cent of its business.

That's the effect of the oil and gas industry on just one company in one community. On a bigger scale, royalties, fees and taxes paid by the petroleum sector make up over 40 per cent of the province's revenue.

Government uses this money to support projects like roads, schools and hospitals across Alberta.

In ways like these, the benefits of our industry extend beyond the oil patch—right into the homes of Albertans.

EDITORIAL

Alberta's tribe has spoken

The just completed Progressive Conservative leadership race is what democracy is all about. For the first time in many people's memory, they have had the opportunity to choose who will lead the provincial government.

This opportunity was so unique, and its importance so great, that many Albertans who are not traditionally PC supporters purchased cards and cast their ballots, especially in the second go-round.

The first round of voting, with eight candidates to choose from, was a bit of a popularity contest, and it was no surprise that there was not a majority for any one of them. The first surprise, to many, came when Ed Stelmach was one of the three top contenders, and more surprises came as a number of the defeated candidates pledged their support to him.

This seemed to rev up the voters, with a considerable number of memberships sold before the second ballot was cast, as the population realized the importance of the race.

The outcome is that for the first time, Alberta has a premier-elect from the northeast part of the province, who is familiar with farms and small towns and the problems they encounter, as well as with life under the legislature's dome.

Congratulations to a very worthy survivor.

Beginnings for Bicentennial, pipeline, plant

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF DECEMBER 5 IN...

1986

Mayor Byron Mann turned the tap to officially open the new water treatment plant and create a new pressure zone for the north end of town. Mann also turned another landmark valve in his capacity with Westmin Resources, officially opening a natural gas pipeline which would operate 240 Westmin heavy crude oil wells which had formerly been operated with trucked-in propane.

1991

The Town of Elk Point agreed to wholeheartedly adopt the Bicentennial image for the upcoming 200th anniversary of Fort George and Buckingham House trading posts. Fundraising got underway for a new rescue van for the Elk Point Volunteer Fire Department.

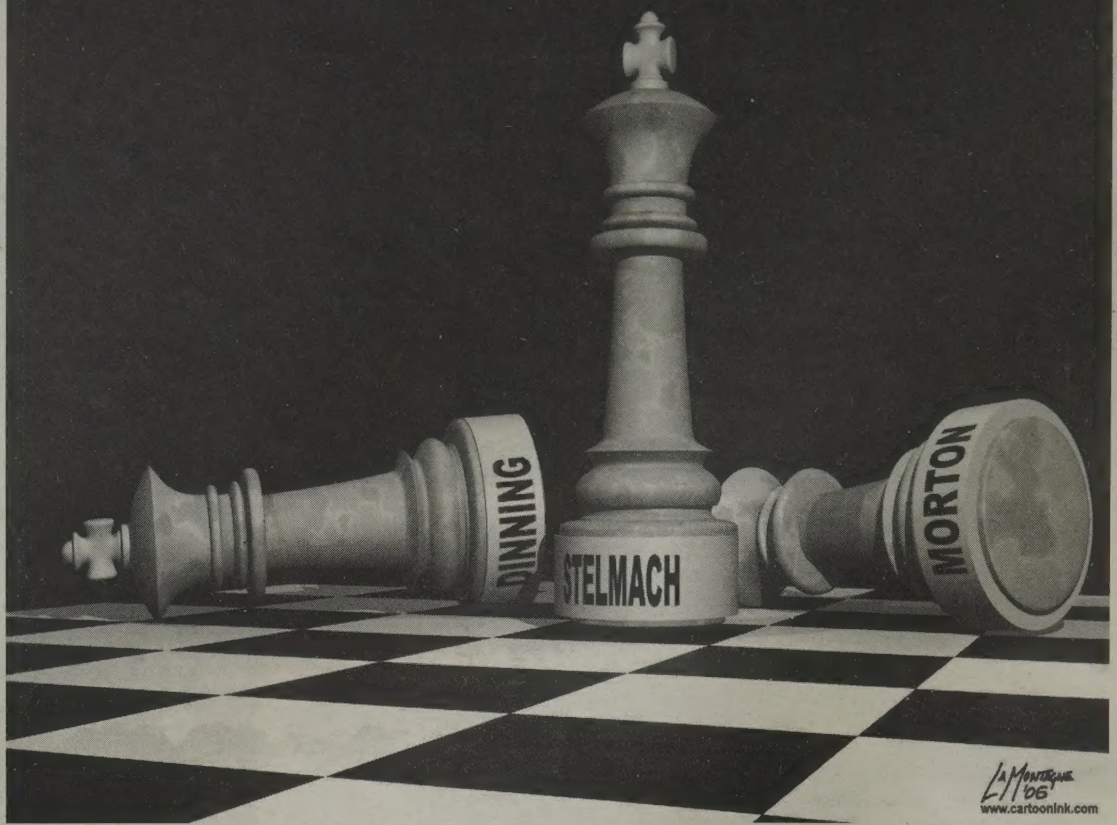

1996

Local groups were decking the halls with attractively decorated trees which were displayed at local businesses during Extravaganza and sold by silent auction, as a group fundraiser for the organizations. Dr. Jonathan Adams, Lavinia Ewasjuk, Carol Maas, Melvin McGinnis, George Sanders and Walter Saranchuk were all part of the new Region 4 Community Health Council which held its first public meeting in Cold Lake.

2001

It was a magical night for Elk Point's Christmas Extravaganza, with a nip in the air and just a few snowflakes floating down. Babe and Colleen Sharkey were honoured as outstanding community supporters at the annual Heinsburg School Craft Sale.

OUR VIEWS

International Volunteer Day

International Volunteer Day takes place on December 5 and is officially recognized by the United Nations as a day to celebrate the work of volunteers. Across Canada, voluntary organizations will be celebrating the contribution of volunteers who do so much to improve the lives of Canadians.

deanna
EASTHOPE
from the FCSS desk

This year, Volunteer Canada is focusing primarily on the contributions volunteers make to the health and safety of Canadians, to engagement and citizenship, and to the accountability of organizations in every sector. Some of those non-profit volunteer organizations that deal with health and safety of Canadians are: Muscular Dystrophy Canada, Schizophrenia Society, Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and the Canadian Hemophilia Society. There are others but when you think of the few that are mentioned here, it helps us recognize the value of these organizations. What rings out loud and clear about these organizations is the fact that they have many volunteers who spend many hours on their identified task. These volunteers are valuable. Thank you, volunteers.

On reflecting on what a volunteer does, I found a poem written by Mary Drew Adams with the title "Volunteer's Lament."

As a stay-at-home mother and devoted wife,
I've volunteered my entire adult life.
A Sunday school teacher and Girl Scout leader,
Library worker and story-time reader,
Involved in every organization around,
Kept me running all over town.
Secretary, treasurer and sometimes chair,
Often it seemed I served everywhere.
I scheduled fundraisers, baked cakes and pies,
Planned school picnics, then prayed for blue skies.
In a desperate pinch, a substitute teacher,
And at every ball game, I cheered from a bleacher.
I carpoled the kids of working mothers,
Served snacks to countless sisters and brothers.
When a teacher said, "What mother can?"
Up in the air went my daughter's hand.
In 15 years of public school,
"My -mom-will-do-it" became the rule.
Now my daughters are away and grown,
With work and schedules of their own,
Yet even today I hear the call
And volunteer to help one and all.
Someday, I'll leave this mortal Earth,
To stand and be counted, for what it's worth,
And when St. Peter looks my way,
I think I know just what he'll say:
"To give out harps and halos here," I'll need a willing ... VOLUNTEER."

Peewee Avs host six-team tourney

The Peewee Avalanche have taken their fair share of beatings this year so when the opportunity arose to return the favor, they took full advantage of it. The Avalanche trounced the St. Albert Vikings in their first game of their home tournament on Saturday morning, winning by a huge score, which by the way was their first win of the season. Cody Knopp with six goals, Dan "the man" Garrett with four, Dino Meger with a hat trick, two each for "Bruise Brother" Matthew Jenner and Lois Dion, and a single for Kevin Garrett. Waylon May with four assists, "Bruise Brother" Andrew Jenner and Michael Abraham adding assists.

Once they got that taste of winning they sort of liked it, and went on to defeat Cold Lake Freeze in the second match later that evening by 3 to 2. Dan "the Man" Garrett with a goal and two assists. Dino Meger and Louis Dion adding one each. The big solid defenseman Brett "the Moose" Ockerman jumping up into the play added the other assist. Goalie Wyatt "Mad dog" Dewan stood strong between the pipes in this one for the win.

This put them right into the A final against, wouldn't you know it, our old friends from Kitscoty. Two weeks ago, Kitscoty hammered the Avalanche, but the Avalanche are a much improved team over the last meeting and even though they lost in the final they weren't embarrassed because they put in a solid effort and that what counts the most. It's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game. At least that's what all the coaches will tell you when you lose, but hey, what's wrong with hosting your own tournament and then going to the 'A' final. I would say that was pretty darn good no matter what the coach tells you. Kelsey Vinge, Waylon May and Louis Dion showed some aggressive fore-checking in the final. And a great job of hosting by all the coaching staff and the parents, but I'm not sure if we need to practice a fire drill next time!

The Dewberry Colts had a great tournament as well winning the B final over the Cold Lake Freeze 5 to 1. Jamie "Fuzzy" Wozniak with a hat trick, Trevor "the Kid" Ballas and Drayton Isert adding singles. Blake Bowman getting in on the assists. On Saturday the Colts took out the St. Albert Demons 8 to 2 to put them into the final, Jamie "Fuzzy" Wozniak with four goals and two assists, his sidekick Trevor "the Kid" Ballas with a hat trick and an assist, and center-man Skylar Ewasiuk adding one more for good measures. Blake Bowman, Dacoda Maddox and Drayton Isert set up goals.

The big lad Chris Bortyanac wasn't intimidated one bit as he strapped on the goalie pads and faced a big tough team from Mannville in his goaltending debut this past weekend. Dylan Odgaard, Brodin Ference and Chancie Botting scoring for the Novice Hurricanes, Amy Harms showing some great hustle digging out the puck for them. This coming weekend it's the Hurricanes turn to host a six-team tournament in town. Come out and support these young stars.

Undefeated so far this year, the Glendon midgets are the top team in the league, and even though the Midget Colts lost to them on Sunday, they have been playing a much more disciplined game lately.

Lodges assist Santas Anonymous

They are very few in number, but the three remaining members of the Community Lions of Elk Point are determined that less fortunate families in the Elk Point area will have a Merry Christmas. Susan Frisby, left, visited the Elks Hall on Sunday to pick up donations gathered by the Royal Purple and Elks at their Christmas potluck. District Deputy Allan Berg and Honoured Royal Lady Melinda Henderson made the presentation. Donations of unwrapped toys may be dropped off at the FCSS office or in the donation boxes around town until mid-December.

NEMA Christmas concert

BY RACHEL DE WAAL
Review Contributor

Musicians with the Northeastern Music Association are tuning their guitars and violins for their annual Christmas concert on Dec. 10.

"The students will be demonstrating what they've learned," said organizer Annette Lajoie.

She says playing in front of an audience is good motivation for the young musicians.

"We want the whole public to feel welcome to join us," said Lajoie. "We want to encourage them to keep going on."

The event begins at 1:30 p.m. in the École du Sommet gym and will be followed by refreshments.

Stelmach wins on second ballot

"His sincerity really came into the forefront in the past week," said Rudkowsky. "People saw an honest person who said, 'I'm going to be inclusive.'"

St. Paul Mayor John Trefanenکو also feels that Stelmach will treat every municipality the same.

"I think Ed is a person that is going to treat the province fairly," said Trefanenکو. "I don't expect any different treatment in St. Paul than in any other municipality."

County of St. Paul Reeve Robert Bouchard points out that although Lac La Biche-St. Paul residents voted overwhelmingly for Stelmach, they aren't seeking any favours from the new premier.

"I think what's really important is the provincial thing - Ed is the best one to lead the province," said Bouchard. He says Stelmach's history in politics, from municipal government to provincial ministerial positions, qualifies the Andrew-area farmer for the job of premier.

Danyluk believes that Stelmach will unite the PC party and will make changes where needed.

"I am very confident that he will be fair," said Danyluk. "Ed will not stay the status quo. Ed is an individual with a vision."

Stelmach told reporters he would be spending the next two weeks listening to people, meeting with caucus and party members, and choosing his cabinet.

"I'm looking at those kinds of people who have ... good judgment, honesty and loyalty," said Stelmach.

Danyluk has been supporting Stelmach since the beginning, but doesn't know if that will make a difference when Stelmach picks his cabinet ministers. Whether Danyluk will take a position if offered to him is a choice he's leaving up to his constituents.

"I took this job to represent this constituency," said Danyluk. "If people feel it would be compromising to be a minister, I definitely need to find that out."

Ultimately, Danyluk says he is proud to represent people that take a stand for what they believe and thanks everyone who got out to vote.

"It doesn't matter for which individual you support, (the numbers) prove to us in rural Alberta that we are made up of volunteers," said Danyluk. "That is so, so important. It's all about volunteers."

Peewee Avs host tourney

The Atom Avalanche on the road Sunday traveled to Vegreville picking up two points in a 10 to 2 thumping. The green light is still on for defenseman Logan "Back Checker" Becker leading the charge with six goals and an assist, Rylan Buffalo a hat trick and an assist, Jarred McGilvery with a goal, Colin Nazarchuck with two helpers, Brandon Garrett also assisting and Mariah Poitras getting her first assist of the year. A stellar performance on defense by the trio of Lindsey MacDonald, Tell May and Nathan Yarmuch and the old humbug "Mr. Scrooge" Brayden Vinge still as stingy as ever, even with Christmas just around the corner he's not giving out any freebies.

The girls know that Christmas is coming, stopping at Wally's World along the way to the border city on Sunday afternoon. The Storm played well for the first two periods, but ran out of gas in the third period. They should have filled their tank at BP's before the game instead of after the game! Mindy Meger scoring the only goal for the Storm. Tori "T Rex" Becker played a strong game in both ends of the rink.

And now for the K.A.

Campbell quote of the week: "I know my players don't like my practices, but that's okay because I don't like their games." Last week's answer to: "We had too many guys hurt their arm patting themselves on the back. Now they're probably rubbing their feet from being sore kicking themselves."- Buffalo coach Jim Schoenfeld after his team blew a 4-1 lead to Toronto.
